DENTISTRY PROPOSAL SENT TO GOVERNMENT

A Faculty of Dentistry proposal for extensive revisions to the Dentistry and Dental Hygiene programs has been approved in principle by the Board of Governors Building Committee and submitted to the Minister of Advanced Education.

The committee was asked to give immediate consideration to the recently-completed report for two related reasons:

1. Implementation of the recommendations in the report would require the University to have constructed a Dentistry building.
2. It has been intimated that the Minister of Advanced Education would like to know the University's proposals for Dentistry before the end of January, as there seems to be some indication that a major announcement with regard to dentistry education will be made prior to a provincial election.

Details of the proposal are under consideration by the Academic Development Committee and the University Planning Committee. The fine points also will be considered by General Faculties Council and the Board of Governors.

RECOMMENDATIONS

The Faculty of Dentistry report recommends

1. That a Dentistry building comprising approximately 300,000 gross square feet (which would yield about 175,000 square feet of usable space) be constructed, preferably in close proximity to the proposed health sciences centre.
2. That adjustments be made to the operating budgets of Dentistry and Dental Hygiene to correspond with implementation of the proposals and their related costs.
3. That the undergraduate degree curriculum and program offered in Dentistry be revised to correct a number of problems, including:
 - (a) The teaching of basic health sciences occurs in the pre-professional curriculum, and mainly in the first two professional years. This pattern causes biological sciences to be taught in a manner almost unrelated to the clinical dental sciences. This lack of correlation and integration is pedagogically unsound.
 - (b) The traditional pre-dental term of at least two years combined with the first two dental years dictates a total of four pre-clinical years. In other words, four out of six years have no patient or clinical experience for the students.

This situation causes student demotivation as well as fragmentation of the program.

(c) Basic and oral biological science courses are often taught by other faculties and are not specifically designed for the academic needs of dental students.

(d) Dental curricula are notoriously closely structured. They impose an extremely heavy workload on dental students. For these reasons dental curricula tend to become inflexible and unimaginative.

(e) Within the present curricular framework there has been little opportunity to experiment with new programs, or to incorporate programs that become necessary, such as Dental Auxiliary Utilization.

4. That the pre-professional years required for admission to the undergraduate degree program in Dentistry be reduced from a minimum of two years to a minimum of one year.

5. That the length of the undergraduate degree program in Dentistry be increased from four to five academic years.

6. That the maximum number of students admitted to any class in the undergraduate degree program offered in Dentistry be increased from 50 to 80.

7. That the maximum number of students admitted to any class in the undergraduate diploma program in Dental Hygiene be increased from 40 to 80.

8. That the number of post-graduate, graduate and post-doctoral students in Dentistry be increased to a maximum of 70.

9. That an administrative structure be approved essentially as identified in this submission. (Editor's note: the major new points of the proposed structure are identified in the two recommendations which follow.)

10. That formal University approval be given to the creation, in the Faculty of Dentistry, of the positions of Associate Dean (Planning and Development), Assistant Dean (Administration), and Assistant Dean (Academic Affairs).

11. That formal University approval be given to the creation of the departments of Clinical Dental Sciences, Oral Biology, and Community Dentistry and Manpower Development.

Building Committee members agreed that their final approval should be contingent upon the satisfaction of three conditions:

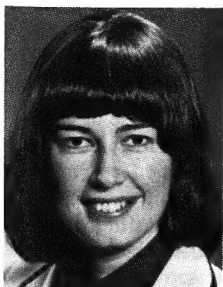

1. That a new Dentistry building be excluded from the six million square feet quota set for the University by the provincial government.

APPOINTMENTS

Donald Fenna, Professor of Computing Science, has been named Associate Vice-President (Planning and Development) for a six month term which commenced January 1, 1975. During that time Dr. Fenna will be on leave from his positions as Professor and Co-ordinator of Computer Application in the Health Sciences and as Director of Computing Services for The University of Alberta Hospital. He will work with the Vice-President and the Campus Development Office to review the long range plans for the physical growth of the University. The immediate review is considered essential in light of government proposals regarding new buildings on campus and a health sciences centre near the University Hospital.

Ellen Jacobs, Assistant Professor of Law, was appointed Associate Dean of the Faculty of Law, effective November 1, 1974. Professor Jacobs graduated from The University of Alberta with a BEd in 1964 and an LLB in 1967. She taught for the Edmonton Public School Board from 1958 to 1964, and was a practising lawyer from 1967 to 1972, when she joined the Faculty of Law as Assistant Professor. She has completed a study of the Judicature Act (Section 24), and is completing a manual on dental jurisprudence. A book on medical negligence also is in preparation. Her areas of interest include torts, agency, advocacy, and professional liability.

2. That provisions be made by the provincial government to meet the operating costs of the new programs and facilities.
3. That a suitable site for the building be provided.

A LAMENT FOR SMALL CAPS

Today, as Folio readers may have noticed, we have stopped using SMALL CAPS (those little capital letters the same x height of the lower-case letters) which in the past added emphasis to the name of the newsmaker. It is not that we no longer think people are newsworthy. Their names will be given from now on in plain, unvarnished Upper and Lower Case because the Times Roman small caps typefont belonging to the Linotype machine at Printing Services, on which Folio is set, is suffering from old age and hard use. These particular twenty-six lead soldiers are tottering, faltering, slipping out of alignment, fainting away on the parade ground, and resisting all efforts to set them back on their feet in healthy, upright ranks. They have become ragged and unsightly and, as they cannot be replaced, it has been decreed that they shall be retired from Folio.

We shall miss them. We have thought of them in the past as being indispensable and shall have to use all our ingenuity to make subsection B distinct from subsection A in many instances. Copy editors the world over have been alarmed by the news that most typefonts designed for phototypesetters (the printing technology of the future and, regrettably, a great deal of the present) do not carry small caps.

Most copy editors have wrestled with chapters of books, or articles, which start off with a main head (bold caps, centred—that's easy), to be followed by a first subhead (bold upper and lower case, centred), a second subhead (bold upper and lower case, at the side), a third subhead (small caps, centred), a fourth subhead (small caps at the side?), a fifth subhead (italics centred—oh dear!), and yet a sixth subhead (. . . — it will just have to be italics at the side). After that it gets difficult. The story, probably apocryphal, is told of the editor at his wits' end marking his tenth subhead "italic small caps," which, alas, have never existed. Modern type designers seem to eschew all such fine distinctions of meaning and stick to one or two heads which are made to do all the work, but there is no doubt that in a closely detailed argument or in lengthy instructions, graduations of heading do help the reader follow the author's reasoning, and small caps have always done their share.

That small caps are used in a wide variety of ways can be seen by the random selection of books from any library shelf. My own five minutes' inspection turned up Singer's Short History of Science (Oxford) in which they are used to introduce the scientists, e.g. EUDOXUS (409-356 B.C.); Kenneth Clark's The Nude (Murray) in which they are used to name the artist in the captions, e.g. 87. RAPHAEL. Kneeling girl.; McGregor's History of Alberta (Hurtig) in which they are used in just the same way in the map legends, e.g. DAVID THOMPSON, followed by an explanatory text; and one of Benn's Blue Guides (a form of publication tending to challenge the most flexible typographer) in which they are used along with simply everything the printer has at his disposal to distinguish a RIVER from a Church from a town hall from a market place from an INN, ad infinitum. Small caps are also used extensively in published plays:

FARRELL: (Open-mouthed) Sir!

And there are those who would argue that an acronym such as UNESCO assaults the senses of the reader very much less as UNESCO.

If you have never noticed small caps you will not miss them. We who have learned to love them hardly know how to face the future without them.

PURCHASING DEPARTMENT CHANGES ITS ORGANIZATION

Several changes were made January 1 in the organization and operation of the Purchasing Department in an effort to improve the buying services offered to all University departments. These changes have taken place in the two areas of allotment of commodities and expediting procedures.

Buying station realignment. The Purchasing Department still has five buying stations handling different groups of commodities, but several adjustments have been made. Principal among these is that all electrical supplies will now be purchased by the buying station of Mrs. L. Ulmer instead of that of Mr. M. F. Kuester; the buying station operated by Mr. G. J. Rankin will now handle vehicles and garage materials; and radio-active materials and animal feeds have been added to the laboratory materials buying station under the control of Mr. R.J. Fairweather. In addition, the furniture buying station under Mrs. P. Wolgemuth has been enlarged to include all office equipment, signage, and appliances.

The purpose of the changes is to emphasize buyer effort on the higher priced items, to group equipment and supplies within the same buying stations, and to strike a better mix of major purchases and supplies within each. The changes are subject to review in three to six months. In the meantime, departments are encouraged to inquire if uncertain about which station to approach regarding specific outstanding purchase orders. A directory giving complete details is being prepared for distribution.

Revised expediting procedures. In line with recommendations from the Administrative Review Committee, substantial revision of expediting procedures has taken place. Expediting (the hastening of purchase orders) is now performed only in one of two circumstances: (1) upon receipt of a specific request from a department, or (2) in order to meet a critical delivery date designated by the department in consultation with the buyer concerned. Otherwise expediting is restricted to the routine clearance of the purchase order files some 60 to 120 days after the date of order.

This change means that departments may place a critical "must have" date on a purchase requisition; however, the use of such a date must be restricted to a small percentage of any department's requirements. Departments specifying a substantial number of these dates will be questioned by the buyer. As in the past, emergency orders should be delivered by hand to the appropriate buyer.

WILL THE GROUNDHOG SEE HIS SHADOW?

Sunday, February 2 is Groundhog Day—the day that animal checks the date on his calendar Timex, then crawls from his hole to see if the sun is shining. If it is, he crawls back into the earth to sleep away the next six weeks of bad weather.

February 2 also is known as Candlemas Day, a religious holiday that nevertheless came to be associated with the behavior of animals and the forecasting of the weather. Following are some Candlemas Day rhymes and proverbs, many of which are more than 400 year old.

- If Candlemas Day be dry and fair,
The half o'winter's come and mair;
If Candlemas Day be wet and foul,
The half o'winter was gone at Youl.
- If Candlemas Day be fine and clear,

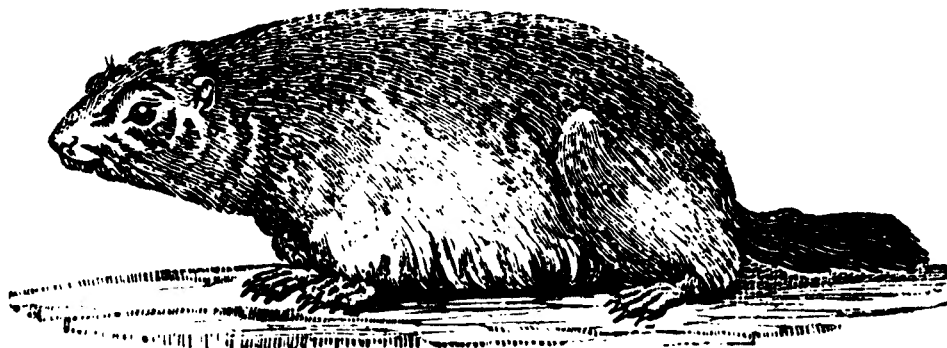

Corn and fruits will then be dear.

- On Candlemas Day if the thorns hang a-drop,
Then you are sure of a good pea-crop.
- As far as the sun shines in on Candlemas Day,
So far will the snow blow in afore old May.
- When the wind's in the east on Candlemas
Day,
There it will stick till the second of May.
- On Candlemas Day a good goose will lay
But on Valentine's Day, any goose will lay.
- The shepherd had as live see his wife

on the bier,

As that Candlemas Day should be pleasant and clear.

- At Candlemas a provident husbandman should have halfe his fodder, and all his corne remaininge.
- If Candlemas Day comes blithe and gay,
You may saddle your horse and buy some hay;
But if Candlemas Day comes rugged and rough,
You may fodder away—you'll have fodder enough.

Those orders for which a critical delivery date has not been specified will not be expedited. It is recognized that changed circumstances may create a "must have" date that could not have been anticipated at time of order. Departments may then request expediting action provided the reasons are given. Again, to be effective, the number of requests must be limited.

Under the new system departments should find that their orders are more effectively expedited in critical instances; follow-up is immediate.

The Purchasing Department hopes that the new procedures will help it provide better service and defer the need for increased staffing.

UNITED NATIONS INTERN PROGRAM

The United Nations Office of Public Information will be conducting a graduate student intern program at the UN headquarters in New York for four weeks during the period July 28 to August 22, 1975. A similar program will be held in Geneva, July 15 to August 1.

The aim of the programs is to provide an opportunity for an international group of outstanding graduate students to deepen their understanding of the principles, purposes, and activities of the United Nations and its related agencies through first-hand observation and study.

The program will include briefings by senior members of the United Nations Secretariat, panel discussions, the provision of selected documents and publications, and attendance at meetings of United Nations' bodies in session during the period. In addition, participants in New York will be assigned to work individually with UN staff members in various departments according to their respective fields of study; alternatively, they may carry forward work on relevant individual research projects begun at their universities. The program in New York is conducted in English only; the program in Geneva is conducted in English and French.

The United Nations cannot pay any stipend whatsoever. Travel costs, travel arrangements, and living accommodation are the responsibility of the students and/or their sponsoring institutions. The programs are not connected with recruitment for employment at the United Nations.

Application forms are available from the office of the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research, 2-8 University Hall. Each candidate should apply in writing to that office. The closing date for the receipt of nominations from sponsors is March 15. Notification of selected candidates will be made by the United Nations to the sponsors by April 15 (May 1 for the Geneva program).

Further information about the New York program may be obtained from the Co-ordinator of the Student Intern Program, room 1037F, Office of Public Information, United Nations, New York, New York, USA 10017. Information about the Geneva program may be obtained from the United Nations Information Service, Palais des Nations, CH-1211, Geneva 10, Switzerland.

WESTERN CANADA COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT CONFERENCE

Students in the Interdisciplinary MA Program in Community Development are the organizers of this year's Western Canada Community Development Conference, which will be held at the Macdonald Hotel, March 19, 20, and 21. The theme will be "Citizen participation," and suggested subthemes are "The citizen and the politician," "The citizen and social services," "Native citizens and citizen participation," "What contribution does the University make?," and "The utility of public hearings as a method of getting public participation."

The registration fee will be $10. Further information may be obtained from Peter de Groot or Julie Ann le Gras, Co-ordinators of the Planning Committee, c/o the Division of Community Development, 748 Education Building, The University of Alberta.

CATHEDRAL CHOIRBOYS

There are some vacancies for choirboys in All Saints' Cathedral choir. The boys will receive a thorough training in choral singing and, in the case of potential solo voices, free coaching for such events as the Kiwanis Musical Festival. Applications are being accepted by Hugh Bancroft, 439-5815, or at the Cathedral office, 422-4234.

'EXPLORATIONS'

Canada Council is trying to make more people aware of the grants available through its "Explorations" program. The grants are offered for a wide variety of projects involving Canadian situations. These may take the form of exploring ways of expression, communication, and participation in the arts, humanities, and social sciences; interdisciplinary research and experiments in both art and science; experiments in and studies of popular culture; and research, in any medium, into the historical and cultural heritage of Canada.

Closing dates for applications each year are March 1, June 1, and December 1.

Brochures may be obtained by writing to

"Explorations," The Canada Council, PO Box 1047, Ottawa, Ontario K1P 5V8.

SELECTION COMMITTEE FOR CHAIRMAN OF DEPARTMENT OF CLASSICS

The General Faculties Council Nominating Committee is seeking nominations for one member to be elected by General Faculties Council to service on the Selection Committee for Chairman of the Department of Classics. Regulations governing the composition of Selection Committees for Department Chairmen require that one member not a member of the faculty concerned, be elected by GFC.

Those who have suggestions for nominations or who are interested in serving on the above committee are requested to contact the Secretary of the Nominating Committee, Mrs. P. Campbell, 2-1 University Hall, 432-4965.

Is property selling?—That's a question we are asked almost every day. Frankly, the way a property "moves" when it's offered for sale depends a lot on how it's handled. For this reason when you are buying or selling, we suggest you give us a call. We are old enough to be experienced . . . young enough to be aggressive . . . large enough to be efficient . . . and small enough to be personalized. Call Dolores Nord, Rick J. Jacobson at Friesen Real Estate Ltd. 426-6770.
